The Round Barn

A hundred-year-old round barn stands proudly in the centre of Mansonville, a village in Potton Township. Built in 1911-1912, the barn served a number of dairy farmers over the years. In 2010, it was donated to the municipality of Potton Township. The building has been the focus of internationally recognized restoration efforts. Currently, for safety reasons, visitors can view the barn from the outside.
